

Mommy's Favorite Things

Honest Reviews.
a Little About Life, and Giveaways too!

8 weeks. 99 cents. Unlimited digital access. SPECIAL OFFER The Seattle Times

- About Me
- Giveaways
- Vehicle Reviews
- Media Kit
- Advertise
- Contact Me
- Natural Remedy
- Shop

SAFARIOLOGIST

SIGN UP TODAY AND GET 10 XXL IMAGES FREE

DOLLAR PHOTO CLUB

joovy MOM

BUY ONE GET ONE 50% OFF YOUR PURCHASE

GREAT GIFTS

SHOP AEO

AMERICA'S FAMILY NETWORK

Moms Connect Member

CHOOSE ME ON SERVE

CONNECT WITH MOTHERS

BLOGGER

Chicken Soup for the Soul Official Soup-er Blogger

DISCOVER Cashback Checking

- FREE checking
- PLUS cash back
- PLUS $50 Bonus*

LEARN MORE

Join this site with Google Friend Connect

Members (4035)

Already a member? Sign In

1858 readers BY FEEDBURNER

Page Rank 2

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 2014

Milkies Review & Giveaway

Tweet 98

I received a sample from Milkies for the sole purpose of this review

I've now been successfully nursing for 5 weeks without a drop of formula! Along with breastfeeding a lot of women like accessories. Although it can be free to nurse, there are a lot of products out there that make it even more convenient. I had heard of the Milkies Milk Saver when I was pregnant with my 2 year old, but I never leaked with him. Now that I'm a leaker, especially while nursing, I wanted to try the milk saver. They also released a new product called the Freeze for freezer storage.

The Milkies Milk Saver comes in a storage container which is great for on the go.

The saver on left and the case on right.

The hole i obviously where your nipple is placed and then you slip the whole thing in your bra.

This is the Freeze

You put your bags in the top slot and they fall towards the bottom, so it allows for a first in, first out system.

This is a fast freeze tray. Lay your bag on milk on top here, once it's frozen put in the top slot of the storage container.

I thought I leaked a lot, I would nurse on one side and with let down could physically see dripping on the other side and I would have a soaking wet pad almost every time I nursed.

Turns out, I collected about 1/8oz when I nursed the other side, so not as much as I had previously thought.

Even if I get 1/8oz every single time I nurse, That's still almost 1.1 ounces a day!!! So I've been putting it into a little storage container and leaving it in the fridge. At the end of the day I freeze it or put it in a bottle and keep in fridge. It's not much, but it's definitely better than letting it go to waste in a pad.

Although the Milk Saver is a bit large and isn't exactly discreet, it is really nice to have on hand. Especially for those that leak a lot more than I do. I know in the beginning of our nursing relationship I leaked 2oz during let down.

Price: Both are $29.95, but you can get the saver for $24.79 on Amazon

Overall: *****

Disclaimer I received an item directly from Milkies in exchange for a review. I was not paid to try out these products*

A big thank you goes out to Milkies for allowing me to review this product and for offering a giveaway

SEARCH THIS BLOG

HOLIDAY GIFT GUIDE

VINTAGE Wedding Gowns

ADVERTISE WITH BLOGGERS GET RECOGNIZED

Your Ad Here

Enter your email address:

Subscribe

Delivered by FeedBurner

I'M CO-HOSTING!

Gifts Galore Giveaway Hop Nov 3-17

Hosted by: Mama's Baby Cupcakes & Mommy's Favorite Things

Merry Fluffy Christmas December 1-7

AND THEN THERE WERE 5... Mommy's Favorite Things

Pink and Blue babies are one December 8-22

hosted by: Mama's Baby Cupcakes and Mommy's Favorite Things

"Apparel for All" giveaway hop Feb 2-16

hosted by: Mama's Baby Cupcakes and Mommy's Favorite Things

"Spring in to Spring" GIVEAWAY HOP March 2-16

hosted by: Mama's Baby Cupcakes & Mommy's Favorite Things

BURST

MOZ PRO

Get access to all the Moz Tools with your Free Trial

Learn More

